

# a lot of -> धेरै

A lot of people went to the game.

A lot of snow falls in winter.

There are a lot of books that I want to read.

A lot of thanks for your services for us.

Singular

- A lot of water is wasted.

Plural

- A lot of computers are needed at schools.

# a kind of -> एक प्रकारको

. a kind of reddish-brown color

• There was a kind of peace about it.

• And the home office is full of good intentions that lead to a kind of business hell.

7 july, 2018

# at home = घरमा

- Ram was not at home, he had gone to the police.
- This was one of their first lessons at home and at school.
- "Well, my dear fellow, I was still living at home," he began.
- At home, presents were under the tree, waiting for their return.
- They would have some time to enjoy a late Christmas at home when they returned.
- It will seem like being at home again, for I lived in that room for many, many years.
- Yet I was once at home, strong, happy, and loved.
- They told him that there were beautiful things at home--why go away to see other things less beautiful?

- One day spent with the blind children made me feel thoroughly at home in my new environment, and I looked eagerly from one pleasant experience to another as the days flew swiftly by.
- I wrote the story when I was at home, the autumn after I had learned to speak.
- I could not make notes in class or write exercises; but I wrote all my compositions and translations at home on my typewriter.
- During the next two years I read many books at my home and on my visits to Boston.
- I should like to be at home on Christmas day.
- He died last Saturday at my home in Tuscumbia, and I was not there.
- This is shown in a little story she wrote in October last at the home of her parents in Tuscumbia, which she called "Autumn Leaves."
- In Moscow he felt at peace, at home, warm and dirty as in an old dressing gown.

# Anyway = जेहोस

- Anyway I went inside.

How to Use "Anyway" with Example Sentences

anyway (adv): in spite of what has already happened; in any case

Used with verbs:

"He's going to go to the party anyway."

(to go, attend, crash)

"You can have it back. I never wanted it anyway."

(wanted, asked for)

"I never liked her anyway."

(liked, loved, admired, respected)

"I don't like scary movies, but I watched one anyway."

(watched, saw)

"I can't eat spicy food, but I tried it anyway."

(tried, ate, tasted)